GRIEF & TRIBUTE

The death of a loved one is a life-altering event. Many are unprepared for the painful emotions that accompany such a loss.

We can help you simplify some of the many decisions you'll have to make. Two overriding needs you will face in your choices are: Grief – dealing with a loss on a personal level, and Tribute – honoring a meaningful life.

GRIEF

Understand that grief cannot be avoided as a crucial stage of healing. Also know you're not alone: Grief experts and funeral professionals are there to help and support you. Equally important, they can assist you in meeting the real need to commemorate a life.

Research and experience have shown that viewing the deceased, gathering with friends and family, sharing memories, and involving religion/spirituality and ceremony (religious or non-religious) all provide comfort during grief. Your funeral professional can help with arrangements that allow you and others to grieve in a healthy, healing way.

TRIBUTE

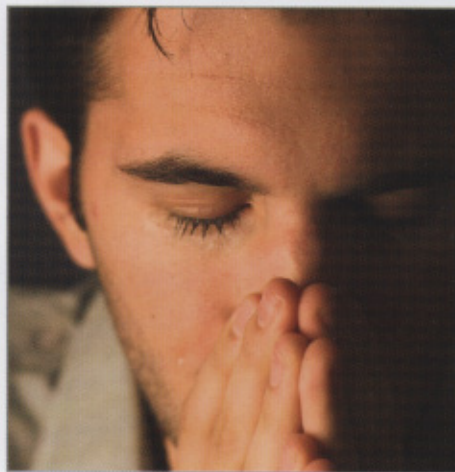

A memorial tribute can be as simple or as elaborate as you decide. Many tributes are customized to reflect the life and personality of the deceased.

Your funeral professional can help you arrange a tribute that may include special music, photographs, memory tables, custom obituaries, and religious services.

THE IMPORTANCE OF OTHERS

Other friends and family members will be affected by the loss of your loved one. Please consider who should be notified and included in gatherings, services, and tributes.

Your funeral professional can help you prepare a personalized service that comforts grief while honoring your loved one's memory.

WHAT IS CREMATION?

Cremation prepares a body for final disposition by reducing it to small skeletal fragments through intense heat and evaporation. The cremated remains are then placed in a permanent urn or temporary container for final disposition.

WHAT ARE MY CHOICES?

Cremation provides many services, selections, and personalization choices, many of which can be combined to create a memorial or tribute for you or a loved one.

Ceremonies & Gatherings

You may desire a funeral, visitation, or memorial service at a funeral home, place of worship, or another location before or after cremation. A service at the graveside, columbarium niche, or site of scattering may also be held.

Gatherings allow friends and relatives to support surviving family members and one another.

You may also choose to have a viewing. In this event, you'll want to select a suitable casket or container.

Memorials & Tributes

Musical selections, special speakers, keepsakes, videos, photo boards, and a memory table can all add meaning to any gathering. Visual and physical mementos can provide comfort by highlighting treasured thoughts and memories.

IN MEMORY

FINAL DISPOSITION

You will need to decide on final disposition of the cremated remains. Some families keep them in an urn at home, but many decide to bury them. Another option is placement in a columbarium niche, an above-ground structure protected by glass, marble, granite, or bronze.

Where approved by local ordinances or laws, the cremated remains may also be scattered over an honorary place of remembrance at land or sea.

Again, funeral or memorial services may accompany all of these final disposition choices.

Urns

Regardless of final disposition, several containers will be needed. The first is either a casket or a specially designed container for the funeral visitation and transfer of the deceased to the crematory.

The second is an urn to hold the cremated remains. You can select from many styles and sizes constructed of cast bronze, pewter, hardwoods, and other durable materials. You can also distinguish most urns through personalization.

Urn Vaults

If you choose ground burial, a third container, an urn vault, is recommended. In fact, many cemeteries require that urns be placed in one. Built of strong materials and sealed before interment, urn vaults protect urns from subsoil elements and the weight of the earth and cemetery maintenance equipment.

Urn vaults are available in many styles and prices to suit different preferences.

Mementos & Personal Remembrances

Wilbert Memorial Series® miniature urns and Life's Treasures® jewelry offer families additional ways to memorialize their loved one.

You may choose to bury or scatter the cremated remains and keep a memento urn or a piece of Life's Treasures jewelry as a personal remembrance.

Many memento urns and jewelry pieces are designed to hold a portion of cremated remains, a lock of hair, or earth from the gravesite.

PRE-PLANNING

Pre-planning arrangements for cremation and memorialization benefit both the planner and those left behind. By planning ahead, you can make relaxed, informed decisions and organize important documents your survivors will need. You can also establish a financial guideline.

Discuss your intentions with your family so they may respect and fulfill them. Your early preparations will contribute to your family's peace of mind—and your own.

Contact your local funeral professional if you would like help with pre-planning.

THE RIGHT DECISIONS ARE YOURS

In the end, your instincts will lead you to the right decisions. Your funeral professional will support you each step of the way with thoughtful and innovative cremation choices for the most meaningful memorial. ●

URN VAULTS

WHAT IS AN URN VAULT?

Urn vaults provide a secure enclosure for the urn. A lined urn vault is made of high-strength concrete and reinforced with durable plastic or a combination of durable plastic and metal (bronze, copper, or stainless steel). Lighter-weight urn vaults are available in high impact-plastic construction as well.

Beyond protecting a loved one's cremated remains, an urn vault can act as a time capsule that preserves cherished symbols of remembrance. It can also serve as a beautiful, personalized centerpiece of a graveside ritual or ceremony that continues the funeral process. Readings, prayers, and a memory table add even more depth, meaning, and closure.

Many of our urn vaults can be personalized (see pages 51–59).

WHY DO I NEED AN URN VAULT?

If you plan on ground burial for the urn, many cemeteries require an urn vault. Lined urn vaults provide varying levels of protection from subsoil elements and the weight of the earth and cemetery maintenance equipment.

Leading funeral professionals recommend Wilbert lined urn vaults for superior protection and lasting peace of mind.

Your funeral director can help you select a lined urn vault that suits your style and budget.
